MAPLE LEAF

Goshen College

Goshen, Indiana

GROUP OF STUDENTS gathers around Fliederhof's unique sunken fireplace. Antique furnishings and bric-a-brac give intimacy to the living room and create ideal environment for small group socials.

Dedication

At Goshen College, the activities of Dr. Alta Schrock are an integral part of campus tradition. In addition to her duties as professor of biology, she has devoted great effort to the encouragement of a strong college community. Fliederhof, the unusual home of Dr. Schrock, has become the means to this end. Through informal after-church fellowships, students have learned to know and value her friendship. To Dr. Schrock, in recognition of her continuing achievements, this book is dedicated.

DR. ALTA SCHROCK

September 1956 to June 1957 - - and another recurrence of the school year at Goshen College is over. Another nine months of the customary registration lines, Civ tests, family style dinners, L-M numbers, and missions chapels have passed into history. Year follows year, each built to a common blueprint.

But by building above the blueprint, a year distinguishes itself from the pattern of years. New surroundings, new personalities and new combinations of personalities enrich each year with its own memories. In five areas the 1957 Maple Leaf places the story of 1956-1957 above the pattern of the "normal" year.

President and two Deans...

Aristotle said, "The one exclusive sign of a thorough knowledge is the power to teach." This statement gives evidence of the dual requirements of a college faculty. It must have a broad knowledge based on both formal education and the lessons of experience. In addition it must be able to effectively impart that knowledge to students' minds. By persistently striving to maintain these requirements, the Goshen College faculty receives the admiration of its students.

CARL KREIDER, Ph.D.

Professor of Economics

HAROLD S. BENDER, M.A., Th.D.
Dean of the Biblical Seminory
Division Chairman — Bible & Philosophy
Professor of Church History

Dr. Carl Kreider returned to the Dean's office in September after a three year leave during which he served at the International Christian University in Tokyo, Japan. Under Mennonite Central Committee auspices, Dean Harold Bender journeyed for twenty-two days in the Soviet Union attempting to re-establish contact with Mennonite groups remaining there.

BEHIND cashier's window in Administration Building, Business Office employees record and regulate the college's financial affairs.

New appointees to the Personnel Office this year were Lester Glick, Dean of Men, and Richard Yoder, Assistant Dean of Men. The position of Dean of Students was assumed full time by Atlee Beechy.

This office is concerned with each student and his relationship to Goshen College. Advancing on the concept that the student needs a balanced program to be a well-adjusted Christian individual, members of the staff enact policies and co-ordinate student activities to make campus life a successful experience.

Problems resulting from the college's increased enrollment prompted the formation of two new administrative posts this year. To the campus as Director of Development came J. Robert Kreider, while John Lehman began his duties as Assistant to the President.

"Bringing the world into the classroom" assumed a new literal meaning as S. A. Yoder shared concepts of Greek culture after a year's teaching at Anatolia College, Salonika, Greece. Serving in the Speech Department while Dr. Roy Umble was on leave was Fred Speckeen.

With unprecedented attention, the Art Department at Goshen assumed a new role of importance in 1956. New courses in color theory and design, ceramics, life drawing, and secondary school art came to the foreground. In June, Goshen College granted its first B.A. degrees with majors in art.

Mary Oyer, returning after a year's absence, renewed her fine arts course; Mrs. Martin Schrag and Eleanor Graber were new part time instructors in piano; and Lois Gunden, returning after a year at Indiana University, revived the French Department.

The field of political science gained new significance in the Social Science Division in 1956-57. A course in political theory was offered first semester, while second semester saw European Government added to the course selections. Other new additions included courses in the field of social work, taught by Lester Glick. At the same time, a committee was working on the advisability of expanding this area of study.

Returning to the social science faculty was J. Howard Kauffman, who had been gathering material for a doctoral thesis.

Some learn to teach...

PANEL discussions presented before the class are a part of the Educatianol Psychology course required of all prospective teachers.

Hours spent in the nursing arts laboratory, pre-dawn bus rides, tedious outlining of care plans, floor duty at Elkhart General — all these are part of the student nurse's education. 1956-1957 witnessed several developments in the School of Nursing. After a year's leave to pursue further study, Orpah Mosemann returned in time to help supervise the equipping of the nursing floor in the Arts Building. A new bus for the daily hospital trips was another addition to the School's equipment.

Seniors make tour; receive diplomas

For 149 GC men and women, 1957 was not an ordinary year — this was their year to reach the top of the GC ladder. But the top had an air of finality to it and each activity, each class was seen with new perspective.

The traditional Senior Sneak, this year a publicized Educational Tour, took them to Detroit. After touring Greenfield Village, the Ford plant, and the Art Museum, they cheered for Michigan at the University stadium in Ann Arbor.

Between semesters, the Seniors set out for Brunk's Cabin and a week-end of tobogganing, skiing, and skating; one of the last such parties they could plan at GC.

Finally, they filed across the stage, diplomas in hand, realizing suddenly how much they had left unlearned.

SENIOR officers include John King, Treasurer; Arlene Litwiller, Secretory; Phyllis Yoder, Vice-President; Sidney Kreider, President and Arvilla Weaver, Historian.

TEAMS line up for play in game which ended with 19-7 victory for Minnesota. Game was climax of two day Senior trip.

PRESIDENT Dean Kuhns presides over 1956-1957 "Y" cabinet meeting.

1956 - 1957 "Y" activities include . . .

During 1956-1957, students again placed their names on the membership lists of one or more of GC's extra-curricular activities. Before long many found themselves embroiled in a maze of program planning, elections, 7:30 chorus practices, discussion sessions, and publicity committee meetings. In spite of the ever limited supply of time, they realized that such activities are essential in playing the role of college student to its fullest.

Many 1956-1957 activities were under the direction of the YPCA. The nerve center of this organization was the "Y" cabinet, consisting of the executive committee and the chairmen of the six commissions.

The promotion of religious life motivated the Faith Commission to express its carefully-contemplated recommendation of providing devotional chapel facilities on campus. Devotional materials, Christian Workers Band, dormitory prayer groups, and Sunday school classes were fruits of the commission's efforts.

In cooperation with the Indiana-Michigan Mission Board, the Evangelism Commission initiated a fellowship evangelism program in South Bend. Continued outreach was effected through Fort Wayne and South Bend rescue missions, visitation, gospel teams, and literature distribution.

JOINING bus lood of students baund for Locust Grove are Jon Clemens and Allen Martin. Extension Sunday school progrom is operated by the Evangelism Commission.

MISSIONS Fellowship meets in Assembly Hall for Friday afternoon lecture and prayer.

Highlighting the Missions Commission activities was a fall missions conference during which J. D. Graber, former Secretary of the Mennonite Board of Missions and Charities, presented a series of addresses. A monthly missions chapel and a mission prayer fellowship were maintained throughout the year.

An emphasis on small group socials was stressed by the Fellowship Commission. The planning of Homecoming's "Land of Goshen," Christmas caroling, the Midwinter Social, and the all-school outing were the most important products of the commission's reponsibilities.

SUNDAY evening hymn sing, held in Union Lounge and sponsored by Fellowship Commission, attracts crowd of porticipants.

To keep the campus community and friends of Goshen College informed of campus activities, the Publicity Commission issued a redesigned monthly calender of events. Further activities included the preparation of the student handbook and the issuing of news releases to church publications concerning "Y" and campus activities.

Eight thousand dollars were realized during the October work drive under sponsorship of the Service Commission. Week-end service units were sent to Chicago, Indianapolis, and elsewhere during the year.

SFC voices students' interests

Student governing bodies played a major role in GC life in 1956-1957, contributing to the growth of harmonious campus atmosphere.

Causing much discussion and speculation, the Student-Faculty Council recommended a new plan for chapel seating. Acceptance of the plan in February broke a long-established pattern at GC as mixed seating, took precedence over tradition. And an SFC committee spurred on by campus discussion concerning drama, studied the possibility of charging admission for dramatic productions.

Men's and Women's Open Houses, under supervision of Women's House Government Association and Men's Dorm Council were highlights of the year. In preparation for these events, furniture was shuffled and jarred as every particle of dust in rooms was ruthlessly sought out and vengefully annihilated. College men, inspecting the new girls' dormitory with pathetic awe, had hope for the future when they too would be able to exhibit modern rooms with pride.

Easter tour climaxes chorus year

COLLEGIATE CHORUS is directed by Ralph Wade

A CAPPELLA CHORUS is directed by Dwight Weldy

The best of Goshen College vocal talent again found expression through two choruses. Members of both A Cappella and Collegiate prepared and performed special music in conjunction with the presentation of the Black Hills Passion Play in Elkhart. In addition, A Cappella presented a program of Christmas carols over an Elkhart television station. The Christmas season was climaxed when A Cappella performed a Magnificat by Monteverdi, and Collegiate sang another by Pachelbel.

After vacation, chorus members mastered Handel's "Dettingen Te Deum" for presentation in February; then began serious work on tour music. Their efforts were rewarded with ten days of travel and programs during the Easter recess.

RECORD receives face-lifting

Deadlines, editorial headaches, and late copy were still part of the RECORD heritage in 1956-1957. The principle that underlies every year's RECORD remained the same — the transferring of ideas to paper, the paper to the public, and the ideas to the public mind.

But changes came too — a change in size, and also in content. The smaller, easy to handle, six page RECORD was the springboard for ideas which snowballed into significant campus issues. Letters to the editor were frequent, forming the basis for discussions in the dorms, snackshop, and committee meetings. More feature stories, more poetry, and an increase in significant news items were emphasized by the staff to create maximum reader appeal for the RECORD.

MAPLE LEAF staff records school year

September — and immediately the need to replace indefinite theorizing with crystallized planning for the production of the 1957 MAPLE LEAF became evident. Layouts took shape, printing and photography contacts were established. Senior and undergraduate pictures were scheduled. A photographer darted in and out of faculty offices, and 3″ by 5″'s with sizes, shapes, and page positions of pictures littered the Leaf Office.

Cover design and color were selected, and an order made out. Before Christmas vacation, 25 pages of copy and pictures had left the office.

January and February found club and organization coverage to be the order of business. Proofs arrived weekly, to be read, corrected, and returned.

Following a last-minute flurry of writing, typing, arranging, and indexing, the calender read March 30th, and with a sigh of relief, the staff realized that the final deadline was past. Typewriters, pencils, drawing board, and cameras were laid aside. The 1957 MAPLE LEAF had gone to press.

Securing a sizable membership increase at the Literary Solicitation program was the first 1956-1957 project for Avons and Auroras.

In December the two literaries traveled to Saint Mary's College in South Bend to see Mozart's opera "The Marriage of Figaro." Before the performance by the NBC Opera Company, A-A's were taken on a tour of the remarkable new chapel and O'Laughlin Auditorium.

In March A-A's presented Anton Chekov's great Russian drama, "The Cherry Orchard." Built on dialogue and mood in an impressionistic style, the production was a unique experience for a GC audience accustomed to distinct plot and action. The effect of social change upon individual personality was portrayed through the reactions of the characters to the approaching destruction of the symbolic cherry orchard.

After an active September campaign to draw the uninitiated to their ranks, Adelphian-Vesperians filled the year with group projects including a trip to a Fort Wayne hockey game and a roller skating party at Mishawaka. Pinnacle of the year's achievement was the presentation of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" on Union Stage November 17, with Oren Glick as director.

AV's present "Barretts of Wimpole Street"

Based on authoritative material, the "Barretts" concerned the life of English poetess Elizabeth Barrett and her family. Conflict between the parental domination of Father Barrett and individual freedom, epitomized by Elizabeth's love for Robert Browning, formed the plot of the drama. Marilyn Keller's portrayal of the poetess was sensitive and real, while Peter Schuette as Robert Browning was the ideal romantic admirer.

Debate, oratory draw GC talent

Vigor and versatility characterized GC forensic activities throughout 1956-1957. In the absence of Dr. Umble, Fred Speckeen assisted forensic managers Richard Camp and Paul Wenger with their duties.

Both novice and collegiate debaters "put Goshen on the map." Appearing in tournaments at Bradley University, Butler in Indianapolis, Navy Pier and Northwestern in Chicago, Purdue, Case Institute of Technology, and Indiana University, the debaters tied for second at Butler, and placed uncontested second at Northwestern, while stacking up impressive win-loss records at the other meets.

Outstanding achievement of the year was Ida Arnone's victory in the women's division of the Indiana State Oratory, in which she received first prize for her speech "The Proud and the Sane."

1956-1957 was a record-breaking year for the Christopher Dock Education Club, consisting of two divisions, Secondary and Elementary. Each group had affiliated with Future Teachers of America, and this year an all-out campaign for members dominated fall activities. The result was the longest membership list in the club's history. Responsible for the extensive campaign were Lowell Detweiler, president of the Secondary division, and B. J. Miller, president, Elementary division. Karl Massanari was the club's enthusiastic faculty sponsor.

Programs held throughout the year included interesting and practical materials designed to be of value to future teachers. Learning of educational systems in Japan and Europe, and a study of work among the Navajos helped prospective teachers evaluate the American education system and their professional position within it.

Varied special interest clubs...

As their major 1956-1957 project, ambitious Science Club members took on the sponsorship of the Northern Indiana Regional Science Fair. Held in Union Auditorium and financed by Elkhart and Goshen industries, the fair brought the work of high school "scientists" to the attention of the public. Granting of awards to outstanding exhibits encouraged excellent displays for the critical eyes of judges.

Willard Kaser headed this year's club. Dr. H. Harold Hartzler was faculty sponsor.

Learning to work in complete darknes was a requirement for beginners in the field of photography as inexperienced members of Photography Club soon discovered. Orientation to the world of print rollers, developer, and fixers was the goal of club members. A year of lectures and independent darkroom work was climaxed by the sponsorship of a photography contest during the second semester, the first of its kind at GC. Officials of the club were Kodwo Ankrah and Marion Falb.

Starting off the year with a style show, especially for freshman women, the Home Ec Club continued with novel and relevant meetings. They included lectures on flower arranging, Christmas candy-making, and selection of cooking ware. Roberta Schertz, president, was assisted by a committee of Home Ec majors.

Climbing in popularity was the Goshen College Aero Club. It was a remarkable year for the organization, whose members purchased their own Piper Cub, and sponsored a contest to design an official Aero Club crest. The club's boundless activities, directed by Phil Roth and sponsor Dr. Glen Miller, attained recognition by surrounding communities.

GERMAN CLUB members continue discussion of German literature after close of January program on the subject.

Spurred on by an enthusiastic president, the German Club was one of the most active clubs on campus this year. Activities included a Mozart festival, a German poetry-reading contest, and an entertaining German comedy. Directed by Ulrike Lichti, "Einer Muss Hieraten" was given in Assembly Hall March 25.

Officers of the club were Adamarie Glick, president, Ed Beachey, vice-president, Janet Yoder, secretary, and Calvin King, treasurer.

"Le Cercle Francais" opened activities in December with an evening of French Christmas carols at the home of Lois Gunden. Though not fully organized for 1956-1957, club members gathered for several meetings and attempted to exhibit their French vocabularies.

1956-1957 Music Club activities began with an Old English madrigal sing at the college cabin followed by the American realities of popcorn and cider. Other programs included Oriental music, jazz, and Gregorian chant in their scope.

New Audubon Club members again struggled with the memorization of the club song as one of the duties of a "loyal Audubon." Binoculars, boots, and bird books appeared as nature lovers followed Dr. Schrock on her memorable tours.

Peace Society pursued an active schedule throughout 1956-1957. In addition to discussion sessions with similar organizations, visiting lecturers spoke to the group. These included Anabaptist scholar Robert Friedman and University of Chicago Professor Kermit Eby.

Throughout a year filled with international crises, students from ten different countries met weekly to talk, share, and learn. Unified primarily by the experience of study in a foreign nation, the group discussed world issues, learned to manipulate chopsticks, or hiked in Brunk's woods.

Cheerleaders were an added attraction at extramural basketball games this year, boosting school spirit with their enthusiasm. Behind the innovation was the Women's Athletic Association.

Closely interwoven with the intramural program at Goshen, the WAA and the "G" Council worked with the athletic department in setting up tourneys and organizing class teams.

The two organizations combined their ideas to plan the all-school Halloween party, which resulted in a 1956 conception of Futurama, complete with space ships and new atomic discoveries.

After Indiana winter weather closed in on the athletic field, chief sports emphasis shifted to the basketball floor, as men's intramural teams went into action. Throughout the first round, Senior I moved steadily ahead of competition. At the end of Round II they had clinched their fourth consecutive intramural title by defeating Frosh I 62 to 52.

New to GC basketball in 1956-1957 was a schedule of extramural basketball activity. Drawn from the ranks of intramural teams, the extramural team played a limited schedule of games with other Christian colleges. On a five day western trip the team chalked up a record of three wins while recording one loss from Bethel College. Biggest thriller of the year was the 103 to 102 victory over Bluffton after a nip and tuck race throughout the game.

Adelphians copped the 1956-1957 literary basketball title with two consecutive victories over Auroras. The first was a tense 70 to 66 overtime win. Final score of the second game was 98 to 81. This year's title was the first for the Adelphians in eight years.

After the conclusion of the basketball season, volleyball and badminton tournament play occupied the gym floor. On the stage, a tumbling team practiced for the annual spring exhibition. Sounds of shuffleboard and ping-pong resounded with increased intensity as tournaments were played off in the west Union lobby.

Soon spring and warm weather made the athletic field again attractive. Baseball bats, gloves, tennis rackets, and golf clubs saw hard usage in practice and play as the years' final surge of sports activity arrived.

BOXES and baggage pour out of car trunks in Westlawn circle as new and returning students move into dorm rooms.

Arriving students enliven campus

Overnight Westlawn circle and Coffman Hall drive filled with cars. Seven hundred students arrived on campus from all directions. Baggage was tugged and pushed up the stairs, down the hall, and into empty rooms. After hour-long welcoming parties and tireless unpacking sessions, the rush of registration began. Waiting lines soon reached their normal length as students crowded into Union Lounge after meeting their counseling appointments. Hours later they filed past the last table, carrying an armload of books indicative of work to come. But a glance at the snack shop bulletin board, already covered with posters, cards, and announcements, caused anticipation to run high for the packed schedule of events to follow.

Socials, Work Drive Project . . .

The task of getting acquainted occupied much of the time of students, old and new, during the first weeks of school. Aiding in the process were the All-School Mixer, with its program of freshman talent, and the Faculty-Student Social in Union Auditorium. "What Goes on Here?" was the theme of the program given by faculty members to acquaint students with new additions to their group. Using the medium of pantomime, professors depicted everything from construction of the new dormitory to the inauguration of President Minninger.

The fall Work Drive caused a major exodus away from the campus as many students sought more profitable gain in their home communities. Wages from students' work raised a total of $8,000.

October came to the campus in a burst of color and ended on a weird note when the annual Halloween party featured the abstract forms of Futurama. Students exercised their scientific imaginations to express concepts of the future age of spaceships and atomic automation.

November — and freshmen hurriedly cleaned rooms and prepared for "examinations" administered by parents during the annual Frosh Parents Weekend. This year's oversized freshman class brought a record crowd of parents to the campus for the three-day event as cousins discovered cousins, and old college pals were reunited.

Paul Erb came to the GC campus for December evangelistic services, held this year during regular chapel services instead of weekday evenings as before. Through his application of the parables of Christ to contemporary Christian living, Erb left a thought-provoking impact on the student body — and found time during his stay to read poetry for interested students in his own inimitable style.

Complete with a pharaoh, slaves and pillared entrance, the dining hall opened to the "children of Israel" as students lost in the crowds of strange faces, felt like freshmen again.

The two days of activities included the annual Thanksgiving service, chorus program, and an L-M, this year featuring Robert Friars in an illustrated lecture on England and Scotland.

The 1956 Homecoming was marked by snow and ice, as well as a basketball game with Taylor University, breaking the alumni-varsity-game tradition.

A season of "firsts" characterized the 1956-1957 Lecture-Music Series. Not soon to be forgotten were the Detroit Symphony performance of Cesar Franck's "Symphony in D minor", and the vigorous rendition of the U. S. national anthem by the National Swedish Chorus.

Lecturers included Luther Youngdahl, federal judge in the District of Columbia, and Hodding Carter, Mississippi journalist and publisher. Carter discussed "Race Relations as Seen by a Southerner."

The Traditionalist Party, holding its convention at GC under auspices of college men, nominated Pogo Possum and Albert Alligator as presidential and vice-presidential candidates in the annual Women's Open House Program. A full-fledged convention, complete with "television" coverage and boisterous caucuses, provided hilarious entertainment for women who had given their dorms the spring-cleaning treatment necessary to please visiting males.

Spring brought another "first" to the campus when the annual Spring Festival Banquet was abandoned in favor of the more formal atmosphere of an after-program reception. A decorated Union Lounge, soft music, and small tables were the setting created for the event.

Throughout the last weeks of the year, students and faculty climbed glass-enclosed stairs and filled new classrooms, practice rooms, and offices of the Arts Building, happy to be counted its first occupants.

Commencement marks end of GC year

Weeks passed swiftly as the approaching end of the year produced a frenzy of term project completion. All too soon final exams had come and gone, and the finality of resulting grades was irrevocable.

The Alumni Banquet, chorus presentation of Haydn's "Creation," and the Sunday evening Bacculaureate service followed as the unique atmosphere of Commencement weekend settled upon the campus. At the Class Program, 1957 graduates symbolically broke their ties with college life through the breaking of the traditional wreath. Then came Commencement and the official close of the school year.

Next morning, as quickly as they had arrived in September, remaining students departed for home or summer activity. Rooms were vacated, and summer addresses were hastily scrawled out for friends' use. 1956-1957 was over, but its distinctive lines were indelibly etched into the pattern of years at Goshen College.

UNDERGRADS

Classes take tests, enjoy socials

Two days of entrance exams greeted Freshmen when they joined the ranks of 1956-1957 undergraduates in September. But other Frosh Days activities soon taught them that there was also a lighter side to campus living.

Sophomores met with their share of testing in March when the annual Soph testing program allowed them to measure their academic development after three semesters' study. The most ambitious Soph social activity was the presentation of a revised "Plain and Fancy" at the February class party.

Returning Juniors had little chance to notice that they were now upperclassmen. Class socials, Maple Leaf publication, and the Junior-Senior Banquet soon involved nearly all class members in one task or another.
